📅 Published: 02 October 2017

Ryen Beatty is a field recordist and producer. Born and raised in South Western Australia, he currently lives in Berlin.

Exposed to jazz and blues music from a young age, he went on to study classical guitar. These formative experiences opened the door to later explorations in sound.

Drawing inspiration from personal experience and the visual arts, he creates work inspired by interests in the collision between the built and natural landscapes.

Using a sonic palette of field recordings, synthesis and homemade microphones, Beatty explores the liminal space between post-punk, industrial and experimental music.
