

Luke Fraser @ EMS 3-17 April, 2017

 Published: 03 March 2017

Luke Fraser (<http://lukefraser.net>) is a London-based composer, performer and educator working in the fields of live generative electronics and experimental genre-based electronic music.

Current areas of aesthetic interest include psychoacoustics, complexity arising from polyrhythm, polymetre and tempo modulation, and emergence within electronic textures. More generally his music explores systems-based procedures such as permutation and near-repetition, and he has an ongoing interest in exploring the role of humor within contemporary music and performance.

At EMS he will work on developing a multichannel piece exploring the possibly vertiginous and disorienting effects of a rapidly morphing electronic pulse.
